

Superintendent School District of Clayton Clayton, MO

Widely accepted as the area's "private" public school, the School District of Clayton has a nationally recognized PK-12 college preparatory, academic program. Located just west of the City of St. Louis, the District serves approximately 2,500 students. After 15 years of distinguished service, Superintendent Don Senti is retiring on June 30, 2010. The Board of Education is seeking an exceptional leader to move the District forward in its long-standing commitment to academic excellence.

Clayton proudly maintains student-faculty ratios of approximately 13:1 at the elementary level and 12:1 at the secondary level. The District's college attendance rates are consistently near 100 percent. High school graduates are routinely accepted into some of the most prestigious colleges and universities in the U.S. The class of 2008 took 438 Advanced Placement tests with 92 percent of students scoring a three or better. More than ten percent of the students in the class of 2009 were recognized as commended students or semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship Competition.

The application period will open in the summer of 2009, with the selection expected to be complete by early November 2009. Serious candidates may wish to discuss this premier leadership opportunity with HYA representatives at the AASA National Conference on Education in San Francisco in February 2009.
